Two years had passed-two years that day Since he had led his men away.-Bright e'er his head the banner stream Bright on his sword the sunlight gleamed We saw them, faintly, through our tears, We heard them send back answering cheers, And, now, in flush of joy and pride, Across the green we strolled along And all the air seemed full of song As happy hundreds flocked about Rejoicing in the muster out. Just then a wail fell on the ear-

Come home to me! Come home to me!" "What's that?" cried Tom, and clutched my arn As if to hold me backte om harm "What is that dreary wailing, Kate! Wretched-heart-broken-desolate! 'Why Tom," said I, "that's Margery Hail; She married Charley just the day Before his regiment marched away At Christmas he would come again He said, as fled the flying train, She waited trembling for the hour And prayed that God would give her power To bear the burden of her joy When she should greet her gallant boy How sluggishly the duil months passed But all the days crept by at last And Christmas morning came; she drest

A wail it thrilled the soul to hear-

"Charley! Charley!

And ran to see the train come in. Oh! Here upon this bulletin She read IN CHARGE OF WAGNER-SERGEANT HALL.' She fell and lay as she were dead, And then it was her reason fled; On this one point-on others sane-She looks for Charley home again. She watches near this bulletin

In all her brightest things and best

And chants when all the trains come in "Charley! Charley! Come home to me! Come home to me!' She never smiles, she never weeps, But still her tearless vigil keeps. And always says, 'He's on the way, And he is due at home-to-day And gazes at the morning sun Counting her fingers, one by one. O, it is pitiful to see How grandly patient she can be; She preens herself with ribbons rare And braids fresh roses in her hair, Then with serene and tranquil brow

Sings, Tom, just as you hear her now,

'Charley! Charley!

"Poor girl-for Sergeant Hall is dead, I saw him on that fearful night: He was the foremost in the fight. The Colonel called for men to leap And storm Fort Wagner up the steep One stepped out first, alert and tall. And grasped the colors—Sergeant Hall. As he was waiting there, he set Above the flag a silk roset. And then he smiled and said to me, They faced the storm of shot and shell And sprang into that blazing hell. Forward!' I seem to see them yet: The flag is on the parapet, It waves exultant on the crest Falls inward and-God knows the rest Poor fellow !-- where the squadron wheeled I saw him buried on the field!" As brother Tom rehearsed the tale marked beyond him, wan and pale, Poor Margery bendling close to hear, And then she chanted, loud and clear, "Charley! Charley! Come home to me! Come home to me!' "I saw a similar name to-day," Said Tom "There is a man, they say, Whose name is Hall, and went from here,-Esceped-" A shout! A stalwart man.

> Came bustling through the startled crowd And swung his arms and cried aloud. Where's Margery? I am Sergeant Hall! O, joy, too great for life! One cry She uttered, piercing, wlid and high. Then, all unconscious, dropped to rest, Pallid and pulseless on his breast.

Haggard and grim and brown with tan,

Her eyelids close Her weary soul has found repose. How calm her face! How peaceful there The roses sleep within her hair! Now from the parapet of Heaven She calls unto him, morn and even, "Charley! Charley Come home to me! Come home to me ?"

But it was her way to make the best of things, and she sat down at once to tell Thomas of her loss, and then put it out of her mind as well as she might.

It spoke well for all those ten grandchildren that they each felt far more sorry for Grandmother Grant's disappointment than their own, and all resolved to give her a present much nicer and more expensive than ever before, pinching a little on their other gifts to this end; and because they had to spare from their other presents for this laudable purpose, it was natural enough that not one should tell another what they meant to send her, lest it should seem too extravagant in proportion to what the rest of the family received.

The Premium Engraving for "Peterson's Magazine" for 1883, beyond all question, is the most valuble ever issued. It is a copy, in line and stipple, of the xtraordinary painting by the great Hungarian artist, Muncasky, "Christ Before Pilate," which is creating such sensation in Europe, sixty thousand ersons having visited it when on exhipition at Vienna and as many at Prague. ODonnell capt John | The picture is so real that the spectator seems to be actually present. The rominent object is the patient, fergivng divine face of Christ. Office--314 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Among the many inventions of the present day, no single one is deserving of more general approval than the accomplishment of what has heretofore been regarded as an impossibility. For years inventions have been gotten up to meet the demand of book-keepers and accountants, who have, necessarily, a large amount of writing to do daily, so as to obviate the great loss of time, together with the annoyance of replenishing the pen with ink, to say nothing of the annoyance of getting the fingers soiled with ink, more or less of which would drop on the books, thus placing them in a bad condi-tion. Again, different men require pens of different stiffness or elasticity, and the result has been, after many experiments, many had given up all hopes of the feat being accomplished. This great achievement, however, has at length been accomplished, and a suffering public will thank Mr. S. W. Higgins for his indomitable perseverance and ingenuity in accomplishing the greatly needed

By the use of the Higgins Fountain Gold Pen every one can be suited, just the same as though your pen was made to order. No public notice or advertisement has previous to this, appeared in any newspaper, although the invention has been completed and patented months ago. Mr. Higgins has preferred to have a nur manufactured and sold to prominent gentlemen, so as to fully test the merits of the invention. This has been done, and those interested, by calling at the office, 314 Olive Street, can see and try the pen, as well as examine the large number of testimonials given of its

The pen is a flexible gold pen, affixed to a fountain or reservoir holder, without any air tube, wires, springs, &c., which heretofore rendered all inventions of this character useless. But two kinds of material are used in the manufacture of these pens, viz: Gold and India Rubber. They cannot get out of order, and will not clog up, as all other fountain pens do. They are conveniently arranged to carry in the pocket. They are sold at the following prices: Plain, $5.50; gold-mounted and chased, $5.00. RING OUT, WILD BELLS. ALFRED TENNYSON.

The flying cloud, the frosty light; The year is dying in the night; Ring out, wild bells, and let him die.

Ring out the old, ring in the new, Ring, happy bells, across the snow The year is going, let him go: Ring out the false, ring in the true. Ring out the grief that saps the mind, For those that here we see no more Ring out the feud of rich and poor,

Ring out a slowly dying cause, And ancient forms of party strife: Ring in the nobler modes of life, With sweeter manners, purer laws

Ring out the want, the care, the sin, The faithless coldness of the times Ring out, ring out my mournful rhymes. But ring the fuller minstrel in.

Ring out false pride in place and blood. The civic slander and the spite; Ring in the love of truth and right. Ring in the common love of good.

Ring out old shapes of foul disease; Ring out the narrowing lust of gold Ring out the thousand wars of old, Ring in the thousand years of peace.

Ring in the valiant man and free. The larger heart, the kindlier hand; Ring out the darkness of the land. Ring in the Christ that is to be.
